1 INT. NAIR FAMILY BAKERY - KITCHEN - MORNING 1

Flour everywhere. PRIYA NAIR, 40s, pulls a tray of blackened buns from the oven with a tea towel. DEV NAIR, 20s, stands behind her holding a phone up like a shield.

PRIYA
Explain to me how this is my fault.

DEV
I never said it was your fault. I said the oven has a learning curve.

PRIYA
The oven is forty years old. It has learned everything it is going to learn.

DEV
Okay but hear me out. What if burnt is the brand?

Priya sets the tray down very slowly.

PRIYA
Say that again.

DEV
Charred. Artisanal. People pay extra for things that look like a mistake.

PRIYA
Your grandmother made these buns for thirty years and not one of them looked like a mistake.

DEV
(beat)
Her buns also didn't trend.

PRIYA
Out.

DEV
I'm going. I'm going. Can I take one for the photo?

PRIYA
Take the whole tray. Tell them it's a limited edition.

DEV
See? Brand.
